

Map of Rome, Italy. 1843.

by Venanzio Monaldini (1776-1781)

A fine and rare 1843 case format map of Rome, Italy by Venanzio Monaldini.

This extraordinary map of Rome heavily references, with various updates and revisions, the seminal 1734 map of Rome by Giovanni Battista Nolli. Nolli's map was the first modern map of Rome and basis of almost all subsequent maps of Rome until approximately 1870, when Rome became the capitol of Italy and more modern plans were issued. Depicts the city in extraordinary detail labeling all streets, ferry crossings, bridges, parks, and historic buildings. Surrounded by plans of important buildings including the Mausoleum of Saint Constance, the Basilica of St. Paul, a layout of the Pantheon, and the floor of the Church of Saint Lorenzo.

Published from Venanzio Monaldini's bookshop on 79 Piazza di Spagna, Rome, Italy.

From Geographicus Rare Antique Maps via Wikimedia Commons.